

Equality

Jeapierre Mansour

September 6, 2021

1 Why Men and Women will never be equal?

"Feminism" is a thing because dominant, powerful men and media allow it to be a thing. Meaning that they control reality of opportunities. Whenever they lose control, it is inevitable that they will use just enough malevolence and violence to regain power.

The ugly truth is that a group of tyrant, manipulative, wealthy, shameless men known as "politicians and bankers" are constantly shifting reality often through media to nourish their chain of benefiteres and to stay in power.

An extremely powerful tool they use is manipulating any new speech elaborated by small communities with not enough power to make a change. What they do is stealing words, changing the speech's context into something radically different, and they call themselves "feminists".(In my opinion, there is no thing such as "feminism"). Some do that explicitly, and some implicitly.

I will explain briefly why gender equality will never EVER happen.

First, the system of relations between humans is built on differences. There will always be someone who has something to say about equality. In other words, malevolence will inevitably destabilize the balance of equality. In fact, let us take an example of a country which claim to have reached equality. (You would need a political party with clear, straight-forward and honest vision to even imagine that sort of reality.) But for the sake of argument, let us assume it is true in any country. According to Jordan Peterson, agreeableness and willingness to be involved in dangerous activities are great parameters to build on when talking about differences between men and women. I will add that violence impedes equality from ever happening, and this parameter is controlled by tyrant men.

Whenever they feel that equality is out of their control, they spit just enough violence to reestablish their power.